Technology at Surterre

Communication is critical to the success of any real estate transaction, which is why Surterre utilizes the industry's latest technological advances. We want to ensure that agents are connected at all times – connected to you, the client, and connected to an entire network of potential buyers for your home. Our Enterprise Email system allows for agent collaboration and connectivity not only inside the office, but from home computers, laptops and mobile devices as well. Thanks to VoIP phone and messaging systems, agents never miss a call. What's more, our fully staffed IT department is on hand to address any and all technological needs, 24 hours a day. In addition to daily support, they hold tech tip/training classes to help agents stay current with the ever-changing world of real estate–related technology, in turn ensuring that agents are able to effectively pursue all avenues while addressing your goals.
